CAREER SUPPORT SERVICES INTERVIEW & NETWORKING SKILLS DEVELOPMENT

One of the most important selling points from a career development perspective, is your own personal presentation style. Whether at a formal interview, informal networking, providing presentations or other forms of verbal promotion, your presence and the manner in which you articulate your strengths, unique selling points, value proposition and positive attributes can be the key to successfully obtaining that opportunity you seek. Finding a suitable coach, like MDN, experienced in such matters can assist greatly in preparing for important interviews or business presentations.

We conduct practice/mock/simulated interviews, role plays, networking or presentation scenarios based on “real-life” examples, case studies, job advertisements, etc. We then debrief with you, providing valuable feedback to enable you to improve. As required, we repeat these exercises again to enable you to get better each time.

MDN has:

- A highly skilled and experienced team who will guide you and improve your chances of successful attainment of more lucrative business and employment opportunities.
- A team with many years’ of personal experience in business, career and life transition issues. We have been there before.
